Concept for South Dakota Higher Education Study Group

Initial goal: To study the governance structure and funding mechanisms of public higher education, and to take a “big picture” look at a system that is the result of a long evolution and unique historical circumstances.

- Identify the primary objective of public higher education: What is the objective of the entire spectrum of public higher education – from the six state universities, three university centers, the four technical institutes, and various online and distance-based courses?
 - How do we determine if we are achieving these objectives?
 - Is the system structured and funded in a way that is geared to these objectives?
- Explanation of status quo: Accurately describe the current formal and informal governing structures, the relationships between institutions and systems, and the mechanisms and practices for funding. Collect and agree upon relevant data.
- History and Background: Develop and explain the history of public higher education – how did the status quo in governance and funding evolve?
- Identify challenges: Develop a list of issues that could be addressed to strengthen public higher education and to gain efficiency. Use this list of issues to begin a discussion about potential solutions.
